Ante-Election Pledges.

Here is what W. H. Starr, president of the Municipal Club, said about ante-election pledges in his speech officially notifying William Traver of his nomination by the club for mayor:

WE DEMAND NO PLEDGES, BELIEVING THAT ANTE-ELECTION PLEDGES ARE THE GROUND OF MUCH MUNICIPAL MISGOVERNMENT. WE WOULD HAVE YOU FREE TO EXERCISE IN THIS WIDER FIELD THE SAME GOOD JUDGMENT THAT HAS CHARACTERIZED YOU IN THE MARKET.

Two Ministers' Views.

Several ministers in the city last Sunday preached upon the moral issues involved in the present city campaign. Two of them, Revs. W. C. Miller and D. F. Howe, got a little beyond the moral issues and preached in the interest of the Municipal third party, the former directly, the latter more guardedly. It is not the purpose of this article to dispute the right of either of these gentlemen to take their politics into the pulpit, but to raise some questions touching the excuses made for it and some of the arguments they made.

Mr. Howe argued the pulpit was a proper place to discuss the moral side of political questions, and in support of this he cited the fact that the prophets of the olden time preached political almost exclusively, but he did not explain to his congregation that the prophets flourished in the era of the law while he is flourishing in the new kingdom of grace. Under the Mosaic law the church and state were united. The same law governed both, if it be proper to apply duality in any sense. The kingdom of Israel was a theocracy. All the preaching done by the prophets in that sense was political, not a part as Mr. Howe suggests. In the kingdom of grace, under which Mr. Howe and the Municipal third party and the organ of that party flourish, the church and the state are divided. Jesus Christ, whose representative Mr. Howe is, declared that separation when he said: "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's."

The question to be decided by a minister in the Kingdom of grace, and in the present campaign, is whether the fact that the Municipal club, having pledged itself to suppress "public gambling" and protect the sale of intoxicating liquors belongs to the church or the state or is a straddle between the two? Messrs. Howe and Miller decided the new party belonged to the pulpit.

There is another feature of this matter that it would be well not to overlook. The prophets always had a mission. They spoke only the words given them by Jehovah, who was the acknowledged head of the theocracy. These prophets were inspired and directly instructed by God, while it is quite clear from a perusal of the sermons of Mr. Miller and Mr. Howe, both were inspired by the leaders of the Municipal club and the matter was for present consumption. For example, some months ago Mr. Howe preached an able sermon about "The little foxes that eat the tender vines." In that sermon he was not handicapped by instructions, and he showed conclusively that the gambling in the homes, under cover of amusement, race track gambling, and so on, were more dangerous and pernicious than the open gambling halls, but under the inspiration of the Municipal club, which seems to have its foot in it on "public gambling" Mr. Howe retired the "little foxes" and went gambling for big game with the blunderbuss of "public gambling." There can be no mistake about this, for Mr. Miller who was prophesying under the same inspiration, the same evening on the banks of the Municipal river, Euphrates, in an attempt to explain why the candidate for mayor on the Municipal ticket had qualified his pledge to suppress gambling by using the words "public gambling," seriously said, in substance, that it was so qualified to assure those who indulge in games at their homes which come under the restrictions of the law covering gambling that they would not be interfered with. If Mr. Miller is correct in his statement it follows that the third party candidate proposes to save the scalps of the little foxes regardless of the fact that Mr. Howe contended in his former sermon that unless the little transgressions were destroyed it was almost useless to attack the graver ones.

There is another feature of these sermons that it might be well for the voters to consider. In his sermon a week ago, Mr. Miller stated that, in his opinion, if either candidate for mayor on the old party tickets were to make a pledge to suppress gambling, the Municipal ticket would be withdrawn. He reiterated the same opinion last Sunday night. Last Sunday night Mr. Howe said, and repeated it in many forms, that he would vote for no man who was too cowardly to make a pledge to suppress gambling. Under the circumstances, Mr. Howe may be mistaken in imputing cowardice to a candidate who refuses to make pledges. In his remarks he meant the Republican candidate for mayor, for he would not support the candidate for mayor on the Democratic ticket, under the well known relation he bears to the gamblers, if he made a thousand pledges to suppress gambling. In this respect it is evident that pledges, in his opinion, are not always conclusive and safe.

If Mr. Miller is correct in saying that a pledge, by Mr. Conklin, for example, would cause the withdrawal of the Municipal ticket it would follow that Mr. Conklin would, as a result, get the votes of the club. If the club has as many votes as they claim for it would it not be worth securing by any candidate. With such a temptation before him is it a mark of cowardice that a man does not yield to it as much as it may be a mark of manhood and principle? It is well known that the gamblers have a candidate of their own and that Mr. Conklin is not that candidate, and that he would lose no votes in that direction by such a pledge. So Mr. Howe's theory of cowardice falls flat.

Mr. Conklin is a man. There is not a drop of the blood of demagogues or trimmers in his veins, and it cannot be injected into the circulation of his free manhood from a coached pulpit. If Mr. Conklin is elected mayor he will be the property of no man or clique. He will go in free from all entanglements and will be prepared and qualified to serve the entire city.

When he consented to the use of his name, in a speech he said, if he was elected he would enforce the laws, and if the laws were not what they ought to be, new ones ought to be made; and that he would give the people of Decatur the best administration he possibly could. These are the words of a man. More than this is deception.

Revs. Miller and Howe, under the spell of the Municipal club, seem to have forgotten the admonitions of the Master who said: "Let your communications be yea, yea, nay, nay, for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; also cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. P. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by druggists, 75c.

Contractors say fifty churches and school buildings will be erected this spring within a radius of fifty miles of Danville.

He Couldn't Drive Nails.

Jonas Swartz, Hartsville, Ohio, relates an experience all the more wonderful because he is now nearly seventy. He says: "I wouldn't take $100 for the good Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has done me. I always worked hard and was careful about a little stomach trouble. I had about a sleeplessness, which I supposed accounts for the nervous trouble which struck me about four years ago. Limbs of my right side got so I couldn't control them; at times I couldn't hold a cup in my right hand to drink from it, and in a crowd would unconsciously hit people with my right hand. The doctors called it nervous paralysis and said that, at my age, I couldn't be cured. I saw Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer advertised in the Repository and got a sample bottle of it, which I thought helped me, so I bought a bottle. I think I have used three bottles, and they have made a steady man of me. I have not felt as well in the four years and am still improving. Why, for two years I couldn't drive a nail." Mr. Geidinger, in whose store the interview took place, fully corroborated Mr. Swartz' statement, saying his cure was a surprise to all who knew of the case. He is authorized to say, this medicine for control and cure of all nerve troubles, is sold by O. H. Dawson, Druggist.

What a Prominent Insurance Man Says.

H. M. Blossom, senior member of H. M. Blossom & Co., 217 N. 3d St., St. Louis, writes: "I had been left with a very distressing cough, the result of influenza, which nothing seemed to relieve until I took Ballard's Horehound Syrup. One bottle completely cured me. I sent one bottle to my sister, who had a severe cough, and she experienced immediate relief. I always recommend this syrup to my friends."
John Garston, 908 Hampshire street, Quincy, Ill., writes: "I have found Ballard's Horehound Syrup superior to any other cough medicine I have ever known. It never disappoints. Price 50c. Sold by C. H. Dawson."

LOUISIANA ADVENTURE.

How a Hunter Was Saved by a Deer in the Nick of Time.

He Was Charmed by a Big Rattlesnake and Rescued by a Buck Which Stamped the Life Out of the Ugly Reptile.

"When I first came to Louisiana," said H. U. Martin, of Bienville parish, that state, the other day, "deer were almost as plentiful anywhere about the woods as the English sparrow is now in your city streets. Venison was the staple meat upon most of our boards, and hunting was the great diversion of that day. I believe I was just naturally born hunting for something to shoot at, and I've been on a still hunt more or less ever since. In my young days I was the mighty hunter of the country, and always made one of every party that went out."

"Some queer experiences I have had, too, first and last, but the closest call that ever came was from a rattlesnake, and I should not now be here to tell the tale if a deer had not saved my life. It happened this way: A pretty big party of us had gone driving through the Black Lake woods, just west of Mount Lebanon, and I had taken a stand not far from the public road, near an old long-leaf pine. A famous deer stand this old tree marked once. 'Old Stray' we used to call it, because it was the only long-leaf pine for twenty miles or more. The drivers had come down in the swamp, and, of course, I should have to wait a reasonable length of time before I began to expect the deer, for I knew they would be sure to start one, and that he would most probably pass my stand."

"In the meantime I leaned my gun against the tree and stepped off about twenty paces distant to gather a handful of blackberries to while away a few moments of waiting. Suddenly I heard an ominous rattling in the bushes behind me, and turned to see a snake about the size of my forearm coiled as if ready to spring. You may imagine my blood ran cold in my veins, with the terrible varmint in such close quarters and my gun so far away. I do not remember to have thought of anything in the few sane moments that must have been left me after I first beheld the snake, but pretty soon I knew it was all up with me."

"The snake was charming me; the hideous open mouth hissed, it seemed to me, in my very face, and the fiery eyes, waving to and fro in the revolving head, burnt into the depths of my own. Gradually all power left my limbs. I could neither move nor speak. I recall these things now, but then I knew nothing, saw nothing but the glistening eyes and the hissing serpent mouth. Just how long this kept up I shall never know, but there must have come a time when I lost consciousness altogether, and what the result might have been I can only conjecture.

"Suddenly there was a little crackling of dry twigs in the underbrush, and a deer came bounding out, making straight toward us. The hideous hissing seemed to cease instantly and the fiery eyes stopped their dance of death before my face. The big rattler uncoiled, but the deer was too quick for him. With one bound the buck was upon him, stamping out the life with his feet. I did not move out of my tracks till the thing was over, and I stood so close that I might have reached out my hand and touched the big deer while the fight was going on."

"The boys found me after awhile, as limp as a rag leaning against the old pine, and, of course, they grieved me for having the 'buck ague,' but the remains of the dead snake with the deer's footprints all around convinced them. But that was my last deer hunt. I have never had the heart to shoot at one since that buck saved my life."

Civil Service Reform.

The Municipal third party has advertised Mr. Ela, a Chicago Democrat, who speaks for the Municipal club to-night, as "the author of the civil service law," recently passed by the legislature. This must be an important question to our Decatur reformers, as they have allowed the time to pass by to submit its adoption to the people of Decatur at the coming election. They have evidently been too much devoted to "suppressing public gambling."

Where can a successful rival to Dr. Price's Baking Powder be found? No where. It has distanced all competitors.

INCOME TAX DECISION

Handed Down by the Supreme Court Yesterday.

INCOMES FROM RENTS ON REAL ESTATE

And Those Derived from State, County and Municipal Bonds, Exempt—The Decision Considered at the Executive Mansion.

The Income Tax Decision.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The supreme court yesterday passed upon the constitutionality of the income tax law, passed by the last congress. The court holds that the law is valid with the following exceptions:

1. Incomes derived from rents are exempt.

2. Incomes derived from state, county and municipal bonds are exempt.

The opinion was read by Chief Justice Fuller. In its conclusions the court holds that there is no difference between a tax on land itself and a tax on rents or income derived from land. The court, therefore, is of the opinion that a tax on rents or landed investments is a direct taxation and unconstitutional.

It was ruled that the fact that the law was pronounced unconstitutional in these two particulars did not invalidate the law as a whole. It was announced that in the latter conclusion the court was equally divided and, therefore, no opinion. The lower court having ruled in favor of the law by a divided court, the law would stand except as to rents and on state, county and municipal bonds, and upon these two points it was directed that the judgment below be reversed.

How the Ruling of the Supreme Court was Received by the President and His Advisers.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The president, after hearing the supreme court decision, at 1:30 o'clock yesterday summoned Secretary Carlisle to the executive mansion, and the two discussed the matter for some time. Other members of the cabinet dropped in later, among them the attorney general. The decision was a disappointment, but the administration will at once issue instructions to collectors of internal revenue to conform to the law.

Secretary Carlisle followed his well-defined custom not to discuss the matter for publication.

Attorney General Olney said the government would not ask for a rehearing, but would accept the decision as rendered. He was not surprised at that portion of it excepting municipal and state bonds from taxation, but expressed the hope that the question of rents might be brought before the court in some other shape, when he entertained the strong belief that the present attitude of the court would be revised.

In the treasury department Assistant Secretary Curtis declared that the condition of the treasury was governed by revenues amply sufficient to meet current expenses.

Commissioner Miller and officials of the income tax division held a conference last night of several hours' duration at the treasury department, discussing the bearing of the opinion on the present income tax machinery in operation and changing it when necessary to meet the changed condition. These instructions will be ready for publication to-day or to-morrow.

Press Comments on the Income Tax Decision.

New York, April 9.—The Recorder to-day, in its editorial comment on the decision of the supreme court of the United States on the income case, says: "Reduced to final analysis, the burden of the income tax falls on labor—that is, on the element of the community least able to bear it. The republican party when it obtains complete control of the government, will sweep the outrageous act from the statute books."

MILWAUKEE, April 8.—The Sentinel (rep.) will say: "A more unsatisfactory decision can hardly be imagined. Bad as the law was in its entirety, it is infinitely worse in the form given to it in the supreme court. The question is left in an unsettled condition, with new and serious complications attached to it. Not only is the law more oppressive than ever, but the revenue to be derived by the government is greatly reduced. It cannot be justified on any ground whatever."

RECEIVERS TAKE CHARGE

Of the Affairs of the Southern States Land and Lumber Company.

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 9.—The Southern States Land and Lumber Co., one of the largest concerns doing business here, was placed in the hands of three receivers yesterday by order of Judge Pardee, of New Orleans. This is an English company and has offices in Pensacola, New York and London. The receivers are S. M. Lamont and W. E. McCormick, of Louisville, Ky., and Clarence Carr, of New York. The business will be continued.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 9.—Adam Schaefer, aged 38, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself in the head, in the presence of his wife and children at their home in Bellshover borough. No cause is known for the deed.

Appeal from the Death Sentence Rejected.

BRUSSELS, April 9.—The appeal made by Madame Jonquiere from the sentence of death passed upon her on February 3 for the murder of her brother, sister and uncle, was yesterday rejected.

Deadlock Unbroken.

DOVER, Del., April 9.—One unsuccessful ballot was taken for United States senator yesterday.

THE CUBAN INSURRECTION.

Numerous Reports of Insurgent Outbreaks but No Great Battle Fought.

HAVANA, April 9.—Reports of insurgent outbreaks have been numerous in the last three days. As far as can be learned, however, no battle has been fought. The province of Santiago de Cuba is still the most restless part of the island.

Gen. La Cumbre, who commands the Spanish troops in active pursuit of the insurgents in this province, has been at Palerma Soriano, to the northwest and across the mountains from Santiago city, for several days. He operates from this base in the nearby districts which are overrun frequently by insurgent bands.

A report received from him yesterday morning says that a party of 180 insurgents attacked the San Leandro postman and his guards Sunday morning, overpowered them before reinforcements could be drawn and seized the mails. Before liberating the captives the insurgents cut the telegraph wires. A government force is pursuing the band.

Gen. La Cumbre reports also that insurgents under the leadership of Rabi and Lara have been cutting the Ventash-Casova wires. Small parties of troops have pushed them, but have caught only one man. He was one of Rabi's lieutenants and was shot. The wires were repaired at once.

The province of Puerto Principe is quiet. Everything is quiet around Havana, although rumors of coming trouble are plentiful enough. Sunday the police found eight white men and three negroes marching with an insurgent flag about eight miles from the city. All were armed with revolvers and knives. They were captured without bloodshed. They admitted that they had intended to form a band and attack the barracks of the civil guard at Jaruco, a considerable town on the railway between Havana and Matanzas. If the government had not been enabled by early information to check this movement there undoubtedly would have been a rising which would have had serious results in this city.

THE PRESIDENT INDIGNANT.

But Very Moderate in His Denunciation of His Calumniators.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—When Rev. Lansing's interview, accusing the president of intemperance, was shown to Mr. Cleveland yesterday he said:

"This is simply an outrage, though it is not the first time a thing of this kind has been attempted. I cannot avoid a feeling of indignation that a man who makes claims to decency, and especially one who assumes the role of a Christian minister, should permit himself to become a disseminator of wholesale lies and calumnies not less stupid than they are cruel and wicked."

"I easily recall other occasions when those more or less entitled to be called ministers of the gospel have been instrumental in putting into circulation the most scandalous falsehoods concerning my conduct and character. The elements or factors of the most approved outfit for placing a false and barefaced accusation before the public appear to be first, someone with baseless motives sufficient to invent; second, a minister with more gullibility and love of notoriety than piety, greedily willing to listen to and gabble, and, third, a newspaper anxiously willing to publish it. For the sake of the Christian religion I am thankful that these scandal-mongering ministers are few, and on every account I am glad that the American people love fair play and justice and in spite of all efforts to mislead them they are apt to form a correct estimate of the character and labors of their public servants."

A TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

Twenty-Five or Thirty Miners Supposed to Have Been Lost.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—A special dispatch from New Whatcom, Wash., says: News of a terrible explosion in the Blue Canyon coal mine reached here last night. There were twenty-five or thirty men in the mine at the time of the explosion. Three dead bodies had been taken out up to the time word was sent, and it was supposed that the rest of the miners had met death.

The mine is on Lake Whatcom, nearly ten miles from Whatcom. Every effort is being put forth to rescue the imprisoned men.

A steamer has left New Whatcom with Supt. John Donovan, two company physicians and other doctors, for the scene of the disaster. A corps of miners also accompanies the expedition and the work of rescuing will be begun at once.

The mine was inspected a few weeks ago and pronounced safe.

There is no telegraph communication from this city to the mine and the telephone wires are down, doubtless owing to the explosion.

THE JONES-CLARK ENCOUNTER

The Governor Pays One Fine and Has Another Charge to Answer.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 9.—As the outcome of his encounter Sunday with Representative Jones, Gov. Clarke yesterday went before a magistrate, plead guilty to carrying concealed weapons and paid the conventional fine of $50. Judge Robbins and Prosecuting Attorney Pemberton waited upon the governor and asked if he preferred arrest on warrant or by grand jury indictment for assault and battery upon Jones, but the governor evaded the question.

There is talk of impeaching the governor, but it has come to nothing substantial yet.

Gov. Clark is out in a card explaining the encounter, in which he says he approached Jones and asked him in the future when discussing state affairs, not to use his (Clark's) name, whereupon Jones flew into a rage. The governor does not state which of the two began the process of explanation in the face of the other.

A SINGULAR SUICIDE

For Which No Motive Can Be Assigned.

IN THE MIDST OF A DAY OF PLEASURE,

And the Society of His Family and Invited Friends, William Vitko Retires, Laughing, to His Room, and Blows His Brains Out.

St. Louis, April 9.—The impelling motive that drove William Vitko to suicide is a mystery that puzzles his relatives and friends. So far as they know there was no reason why he should blow out his brains. They say that his home life was happy and his business prosperous.

He made elaborate preparations for death and executed them so tragically that some people say he must have been crazy. First he invited a number of his most intimate friends to his home, joined them in a social game of cards, and while they were enjoying themselves he slipped away into another part of the house, chatted for a few minutes with his wife and sister, and then fired the shots that made him a corpse.

Vitko was a silver plater and lived at 3632 Iowa avenue. He had a house full of friends Sunday afternoon and was in exceptionally good humor.

About 3 o'clock he left the card table upstairs, where his guests were amusing themselves, and went down into the kitchen, where the women of the household were. His wife was there, as was also his sister, Mary.

He joked and chatted with them for awhile, telling his wife what a pretty bonnet he intended getting her for Easter. Then he blacked his shoes and passed out into the hall and into his bedroom, flaunting his handkerchief in his sister's face as he passed her.

He had hardly been gone thirty seconds when the women heard a pistol shot. Mary Vitko ran into the bedroom. As she reached the door another shot was fired. She saw her brother reel and fall. The pistol dropped from his hand. Blood was pouring from a wound in the man's head.

Mary's screaming aroused the whole house. Water was thrown in the wounded man's face. He did not revive. Dr. Borgfeldt was summoned, but the unconscious man never spoke again. He died a few minutes after midnight.

The police were then notified of the occurrence and Officer Rudolph went to the house. He concluded that as there had been two shots fired it must have been a suicide and so reported.

The family claim it was an accident. They think Vitko was shooting the pistol just to frighten the women in the house. Mary Vitko thinks it was the second shot which struck her brother in the head. The first one went into the floor. As no one saw the actual shooting it will never be known how it happened.

Vitko was 31 years of age and leaves a widow and two children. He was in business for himself at 109 North Twelfth street. His brothers say his financial affairs were in good condition.

SILVER DICK'S HEALTH.

He Is Not Seriously Ill, but Not Well Enough to Start on His Lecture Tour.

LEDANON, Mo., April 9.—Hon. R. P. Bland is not seriously ill, but his health is not good, and he is not well enough to start on his lecture tour through Colorado and Montana at present. He expected to leave here on the 15th inst., to open at Denver on the 20th, but will not be able to do so, and has canceled all his dates for this month. He is troubled with a sore throat, and it would be impossible for him to lecture on that account, even if his general health would permit it. He is under his physician's care and getting along very well, but it will be several weeks before he is able to start on his western tour. It is now his intention to fill his dates in Colorado and Montana during May and June. If his health continues to improve he will be able to do so. He greatly regrets the necessity of postponing his trip at this time.

Resignation of Speaker Peel.

LONDON, April 9.—In the house of commons yesterday Speaker Peel made the announcement that owing to the condition of his health he was obliged to resign his office. He expressed regret at leaving the post which he had filled for eleven years. During that time, he said, he had constantly been the recipient of evidences of consideration and forbearance from all sides of the house, and for these manifestations he desired to express his sincere thanks.

New York Police Bribery Trials.

NEW YORK, April 9.—The trial of Police Inspector McLaughlin for receiving bribes, which was set down for yesterday morning in the court of oyer and terminer, has been postponed until Monday, April 15. Detective Sergeant Frink and Sergeant O'Toole will probably be put on trial to-morrow. They are charged with receiving bribes by Dr. Whitehead.

Revoked the Permit at the Eleventh Hour.

CLEVELAND, O., April 9.—The fifteen-round fight between Pat Reedy, of Washington, and Arthur Walker, the Australian welterweight, which was to have taken place at the Imperial Athletic club last night, was declared off. Mayor Blee, whose term of office expired at midnight, revoked the permit late yesterday afternoon.

Li Hung Chang's Wound Completely Healed.

LONDON, April 9.—A Central News dispatch from Tokio says: Dr. Sato says that Li Hung Chang's wound is completely healed.

CHICAGO, April 8.—This morning Gen. McNulta met the representatives of the four distillers and told them that the American Distributing Co., would not recede from its demands. "Then count us out," said Mr. Herget, of the Globe distillery, and the four men left the office. "We will not pay tribute to the American Distributing Co., for a trade we have built up, despite the fierce opposition of the trust," said Mr. Herget. "We will fight the association to the last. We are better equipped than any other distillers in the country. The cost of producing spirits in our plants is less than one-third that of the trust. There is no longer any hope of maintaining the spirits association. It is dead."

ARE FOND OF DANCING.

Berliners Love to Indulge in Terrestrial Dissipations.

Actors and Actresses Ridicule the Prussian Bureaucrats in a Clever Way—A Bit of the Tyrol in Berlin—A Sweet Affair.

[Special Berlin (Germany) Letter.]
Berlin isn't Paris, and there never was any Jardin Mabille nor any Cicerone de Lila there, but in point of dancing, I think, the German capital beats the French. This year's ball season, especially, short though it was, brought an immense number of terpsichorean dissipations, and among them there were a few that deserve some mention.

There is an ancient law on the statute books in Prussia, dating from the time when actors and opera singers were strolling about the country and, by dint of "one-night stands," eking out a miserable and precarious livelihood. This law classifies stage folk with domestic servants, with the "Gesinde," and even vouchsafes to their boss, the owner of the theater or chief of the troop, the right of "manual correction," i. e. of slapping the members in the face and administering other mild forms of personal chastisement. Well, about last New Year the president of the police in Berlin, Baron von Kiehn, finding that a provincial court in a suit against a theatrical manager had resuscitated this old law and applied to it the case in hand, issued a ukase calling public attention to the fact that actors and actresses, from the prima donna to the weazened old intrigante, were "Gesinde" and, as such, amenable to the rules and regulations in such case made and provided.

The press ridiculed the order; the "profess" first laughed at it, then waxed wrathful and held indignation meetings; the public wondered, smiled and said nothing. The order was not rescinded. It remains nominally in force to-day, although in "innocuous desuetude," I suspect.

Recently the whole theatrical profession in Berlin gave a ball at the Kaiserhof, the most aristocratic hotel in town, which they styled "Gesinde ball," and at which everybody present appeared in the costume of a member of the servant class. It had been arranged by half a dozen of the hintiest and most popular actresses, including Reichenhofer, Jenny Grunwald and Else Lehmann, and it was a stunning success. Satirically, humorously and by the law of contrast the hundreds of jolly Terpsichorean disciples demonstrated that it is folly to class them in the year 1905 with the kitchen maid or the valet. The critics of Berlin were present, of course, and a score of the most popular writers, such as Stinde and Blumenthal and Ludernann, and a few literary triflers, were performed. But the chief joke of the evening was, of course, the costuming. The very flavor of the profession, both male and female, disported themselves clad as nurses and cooks, chambermaids and body servants, concubines and footmen and ushers, porters and butlers, and imagination had lent them wings for devising new classes of domestic spirites. The fact that some 20,000 marks were added to the pension fund for superannuated actors shows that, financially as well, the affair was a success.

Another very odd and original ball occurred on the selfsame night. It was given by the Berlin section of the Austro-German Alpine club at the Philharmonic building, and of its kind it was, perhaps, even more enjoyable. The whole interior of the huge building had been transformed into a bit of Alpine country. The immense ballroom (where on other nights the finest concerts in the capital are performed) had been changed into a landscape near Meran, Tyrol, and the festival celebrated there was a counterfeit of that of the vintners of grape-buried Meran, with gayly-decorated village streets on the main floor, and glistening glaciers in the background. A Meran band of drummers and fliers played the Passerey march, the same which ed Andreas Hofer and his Tyrolese into battle against the French in 1809; and everybody was an Alpine boy or lass for the time being. The costumes worn by the participants were genuine, as most of those present were members of the Alpine club and had used those same "trunks" before in climbing steep paths high up in the Bavarian or Tyrolese mountains during recent summers, and enough of the natives had been imported from their far-away homes to complete the illusion. There were a band of yodlers, a number of either players, a half dozen of expert dancers of the "Schuhplattl," and a whole score of villagers from the Vintschgau in the Tyrol to perform the famous "Bandel" dance around the May pole. The wine rooms and beer cellars were fitted up to match, and once past the grim barrier at the entrance gate, where Austrian revenue officers sat and collected tribute, the visitor was not in Berlin, but in some Alpine village, high up and away from the busy world.

To talk of the subscription ball at the Royal opera house at this late date seems superfluous, for this most resplendent and aristocratic of all private balls given occurs regularly once every year during the carnival time. Suffice it to say that it was more brilliant and glorious of diamonds, colors and handsome women and stately men than ever, and the emperor strolling up and down among the immense crowd for upward of an hour, with his train of glittering aides and flashing cuirassiers, added not immaterially to the picture. For it was a picture—not a ball. Although the space given up was that of the whole opera house, holding many thousands, and although the price of admission is purposely fixed rather high, the pressure was so enormous as to make dancing quite impossible.

From this ball to those which, just now, engage the special attention of the police, is quite a step, but it has to be made in order to complete the survey. There are, it is true, a large number of decent and respectable public ballrooms in Berlin, like the Artushof, where the girls or wives of the small middle classes, the mechanics and the shopkeepers, now and then have a hop with their husbands, sweethearts and relatives, where one club or societies meet and have a good time in a slow, old-fashioned way. There are cheaper places, still well-behaved enough, where the large array of servant girls and cooks, of coachmen and gardeners, meet and dance, where young soldiers and old soldiers show themselves in all their martial splendor with their best girls. But these places have not been interfered with by the police. The category which, of late, has been put under police surveillance and of which some at least have been suppressed and others restricted, is the one where vice in its most alluring garb has been stalking rampant for months and years. The Blumensale (flower halls) is a good specimen of this latter kind. It was a month ago that a sedate old aristocrat, member of the reichstag and owner of large estates in the eastern provinces of the monarchy, one evening after a fine dinner at Dressel's allowed himself to be lured to this place by a couple of gay young diplomats who had shared the meal with him. Next morning the old gentleman was dead, and the last penny of a large sum he had had upon him was gone. There had been an orgy in one of the boxes, and a couple of the handsomest members of the demi-monde were arrested, but soon let go for want of proof. This incident in metropolitan life, an incident which had often occurred before, indeed the police to subject those Blumensale and similar establishments to a more rigorous supervision. At present they are forced to close at 3 a. m., and, since the regular customers of these places, both men and women, as a rule, only begin to show up at midnight, this "early-closing order" means the financial ruin of the owners unless it be rescinded before long. The Blumensale are the acme of material elegance, and none but persons in full ball costume are allowed on the floor, while nothing but champagne at six dollars a bottle is served by the waiters. In point of dash and "go," however, they do not equal similar establishments in Paris.

WOLF VON SCHIERBRAND.
An Excellent Reason.
The two wives were discussing the peculiarities of their respective husbands and they coincided with great unanimity until they reached the point of their own relation to the purse-strings.

"My husband never gives me a cent of money unless he grows about my extravagance," said one.
"Mine does the same thing," attested the other.
"But I get even with him," and her face showed the color of satisfaction.
"How do you ever do it?"
"I go through his trousers' pockets when he's asleep."

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed the other, "I wouldn't do that for anything."
"Why not? Haven't we a right to the money as well as they have?"
"Yes; but I wouldn't go into my husband's trousers' pockets for it."
"I'd like to know why?" quite indignant at the apparent reproach.
"Because," blushed the other, "he carries his money in his vest."—Detroit Free Press.

The Tyroler's Song.
O, it's joy to be up in the morning when the dew
And the air is full of a sweetness that makes
It a draught divine,
To mount one's wheel and go flying, away and Away, a crowd of beauty, and all that
In a wide, bright world of beauty; and all that world is mine!

There's a breath of balm on the breezes, a scent
Of the rapturous roses,
A hint of the incense odors that blow through the hillside pines,
And ever a shifting landscape that some new bright charm discloses,
As I dash from nooks of shadow to plains
where the sunlight shines.

I sing in my care-free gladness; I am kin to the wind that's blowing;
I am thrilled with the bliss of motion like the bird that skims the down;
I feel the blood of the gypsy in my pulses coming along.

Give me my wheel for a comrade, and the king may keep his crown!
—Eileen E. Rexford, in Youth's Companion.

A Housekeeper's Autumn Time.
The autumn winds sigh through the trees
The brown leaves earthward float,
And I must see the buttons on
My husband's overcoat.

The western sky where gilded clouds
Loam up like mountain grass,
Seems to portend a pleasant day
To color carpet grass.

The gorgeous beauty of the days,
With white frosts intervening,
Warns me that the time remains
To do my fall house cleaning.

The honeybee and butterfly
Bid farewell to the flowers,
While I am scrubbing fly specks off
These dirty walls of ours.

The squirrel hoards his store of nuts,
The wild bird southward goes,
The children rambling in the woods
Will soon need winter clothes.

So as the autumn days go by,
With joy and duty teeming,
They bring me double happiness
In doing and in dreaming.

And teach this lesson as with toll
I mingle thoughts of Heaven,
The Maker of this beautiful world
Worked six days of the seven.

—Grace L. Howard, in Good Housekeeping.

The Old House.
The old house stands in the little town,
The trees cut out their branches high,
The blackbirds hold campmeeting when
The sun dips down the western sky.
The tropic yields no cheerful glow,
The hearthstone once so clean and bright
And the polished floor of long ago
Are rocking now with soft and bright
The little windows, seven by nine,
Now numbered, every tiny pane—
Dust-curtained now the mountain pine
Has changed to a mist of falling rain.
But changing years have not displaced
The time that clambered to the eaves—
A wealth of blossoms interlaced
With mottled green and scarlet leaves
So memory wanders to the past
And listens at the old house door
For the remembered voice at last
Of loved ones who return no more.

—Emilie Clare, in Western Rural.

Question and Answer.
Where are the fairies in pink and white,
Clustered close together:
Who used to dance on the apple boughs
In the beautiful May weather?
They went away on a sunny day,
And nothing was left, alas!
But rose shreds of their lovely robes
Lying upon the grass.

Come out to the orchard, and walk with me,
The autumn sun shines bright.
On many a heavy-laden bough
I will show you a wondrous sight;
Each fairy, that to the orchard brought
Her loveliness and grace,
When she went away on that sunny day,
Left as apple in her place.

—Mary F. Butts, in S. S. Times.
